

Neville studied at the Arts University College Bournemouth where he graduated with a degree in Architecture. Whilst at university, he developed an interest in light and darkness, the balance between these elements and how they can impact on the perception of space.

Neville started at Speirs + Major in April 2014, and is looking forward to further developing his knowledge of light. He has since assisted with a number of projects including the Vajrasana Buddhist Retreat Centre in Suffolk, retail developments in Birmingham and London and a variety of projects in the new King's Cross development.

In his spare time, Neville enjoys drawing, participating in various sports and playing the guitar.
