

SPEIRS + MAJOR

Telli Nourkeyhani
Graphic Designer
BSc (Hons), MA (Hons)

Telli studied Visual Communication at the Tehran College of Art and Architecture of the Islamic Azad University, in Iran. Following this she moved to the UK to study for a Master of Arts in Graphic Design at the London College of Communication.

Having been exposed to architecture from an early age, with both her parents being Architects and then working with several architects as a Graphic Designer, Telli developed a great understanding and appreciation for the practice of architecture. Through her research for her dissertation on integrating graphic design into the built environment, Telli came to discover the values that lighting can add to environmental graphics.

In early 2010 Telli joined Speirs + Major and has since spent her time helping to create the new Speirs + Major corporate identity and website. She has also worked on projects to enhance the branding and information graphics for a number of clients.

Outside of work, Telli spends her time working on personal graphic design projects as well as photography and playing the piano. She enjoys an active lifestyle and speaks both English and French fluently.
